

Up high with the world first

TP 1 stairs platform from Hailo

Painting walls, hanging decorations, changing light bulbs, checking smoke alarms – normally you'll only need a household ladder to do all these jobs around the home. But it's a different story when it comes to hallways. Apart from the heights involved, tight layouts and space-saving stair designs with narrow landings can make many jobs more difficult. And setting up a ladder? Don't even start. Hailo has now come up with a safe and clever solution to the problem: the innovative TP 1 stairs platform. The versatile tool is characterised by a wide range of applications – from straight stairs right through to a variety of turn layouts. The TP 1 also put in a convincing performance at the iF Design Award 2018 and Red Dot Award: Product Design 2018, with the independent expert jury appreciating its level of innovation, functionality and safety, among other qualities.

In this world premiere Hailo, the inventor of the first household ladder to be made from aluminium, has catered consistently to the needs of DIYers. The TP 1 stairs platform can be used as a working platform or as the base for any Hailo folding steps and stepladders with up to four steps. A non-slip working surface integrated into a sturdy aluminium frame system offers a firm footing. This versatile product comes pre-assembled for immediate use, both inside and outside the home.

Quick-locking telescopic rails also allow the platform to be flexibly adjusted in length and height to the individual circumstances on site. Like a spirit level, the built-in bubble allows the platform to be erected in a precise horizontal position. Whether wood, stone, vinyl or carpet, four feet with Soft Grip soles guarantee optimum safety with non-slip stability on different floor coverings. Hailo has provided additional safety when handling by the two-hand safety unlock feature.
